Poeta, Ovidius, nobis fabulam Daedali et sui filii, Icari narravit. Daedalus, notus inventor, et Icarus in insula Cretae captivi retinebantur. Cupiens fugere ad suam patriam, ille scivit eum nec in terra nec in mari fugere posse. His intellectis, aves magna cum cura spectavit. Daedalus, qui alas cera plumisque fecit, suum filium monebat: "Specta me! Vola post me! Te moneo solem ceram liquefactum esse et mare plumas humecturum esse!" Tum carcerem reliquerunt et volare super terram inceperunt. Primum Icarus, post suum patrem, Daedalum, in media via inter caelum et mare volavit, sed mox hic puer stultus, gaudio volatus superatus, prope solem volare incepit. Heu! Sol ceram liquefecit et Icarus, qui ex caelo cecidit, mortuus est. Tunc tristitia Daedalum impleverat. Mare, in quod Icarus ceciderat, Mare Icarium vocatur.
